

Another session I attended was one by Jane Bussman. She is a comedy writer who recently unleashed "My worst date ever" a book about the struggle in Northern Uganda by fomented by Joseph Kony. I missed her act but attended the question and answer session on Sunday where people could chat with the hilarious writer flanked by Andrea Bohnstedt who runs Ratio Magazine and is also a columnist with The Star newspaper and Betty Muragori who is also known in certain circles as Sitawa Namwale the poet who penned "Cut off my tongue." That Bussman lass is funny. And she clearly cares about what is happening in Northern Uganda with kids being kidnapped and made to be soldiers and sex slaves. And in the midst of it all she seems to come out with comedy nuggets. When I grow up I want to be just like her. Only that I don't want to have to be forced with the trauma of war. And squat loos. For those who missed the show (me included) it will be happening soon in Nairobi. Watch this space.

NairobiLiving

with James Murua

Home

NairobiLiving

